10. BRIEF SUMMARY OF SIGHTING

Yellow and light blue object (top part seemed yellow; front and bottom were blue.). Object was a little smaller than the Echo satellite. When first observed it seemed to turn slightly to its left. Then it turned to its left and picked up speed. It passed between the first and second stars on the handle of the Big Dipper. It seemed to rise gracefully. It then went into a cloud and lost its brightness and seemed to turn into a small bluish white dot.

11. COMMENTS

This case is classed insufficient data. However, the characteristics and general description indicate that the object sighted was a balloon. No confirming dat at this time.

Then it turned to its left and picked up speed. It passed between the first and second star on the handle of the big dipper. Here is a sketch.

It seemed to start to be the Echo satellite. It seemed to rise gracefully as though it knew what it was doing and at the same time like it wanted to go somewhere in a hurry. On the Western sky where it first appeared there was no clouds. The only cloud that night was where this object went in to Those could have been a moon on the East though I'm not sure. When it hit the cloud it lost its brightness and seemed to turn into a small bluish white dot. The followers sketches confuse me but here is my sketch - This is looking down. What confuses me is the way you want me to bill it upon sketches. Hate is the heavy lines and like

This object did not take up too much time or space in making its left turns in regards to the earths circumference
